European refiners try to optimize amid gas crisis, North Sea decline

Self-help' measures potentially limit LPG, naphtha sales Europe's oil refiners are grappling with the combined impact of North Sea decline and rocketing prices for natural gas used in their operations, even as they enjoy higher margins on the back of the pandemic recovery. Refiners have said they are doing their best to reduce use of natural gas as the market is squeezed by Russian supply shutoffs stemming from the conflict in Ukraine. It comes as European refineries are expected to remain stretched going into winter when it comes to supplying diesel, partly due to sanctions on Russian diesel supply, even as recession fears have helped ease gasoline market tightness. BP's indicative marker margins for Northwest Europe and the Mediterranean were roughly five times year-earlier levels in Q2 2022. Ultra-low sulfur d... For more info go to <https://bit.ly/3vTdkMy>

Freeport LNG To Restart Most Production By October

Freeport LNG will resume most of its operations by October after the Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration greenlit the restart. Freeport LNG said that the approval of the PHMSA is contingent on the company taking some "corrective measures." "Freeport LNG continues to believe that it can complete the necessary corrective measures, along with the applicable repair and restoration activities, in order to resume initial operations in early October," the company said. Houston-based Freeport LNG suffered an explosion on June 8, which caused the plant to shut down to assess the damage and perform repairs. Freeport LNG accounts for 20 percent of the United States' total LNG export capacity, capable of processing 2.1 billion cu ft of gas per day. According to Freeport LNG, it is t... ## EUROPE GAS-UK gas prices rise on low imports, LNG terminal maintenance British prompt wholesale gas prices rose on Monday due to a fall in imports from Norway and maintenance at a liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminal, while uncertainty over Russian supplies kept Dutch prices at high levels. The British day-ahead contract TRGBNBPD1 rose 15 pence to 290 pence per therm by 1112 GMT, while gas for immediate delivery TRGBNBPWKD increased 9.50 pence to 292.50 pence per therm. "Lower LNG sendout due to partial maintenance at Dragon LNG terminal and ... lower gas receipts from Norway due to an unplanned outage in Slepner have contributed to higher prices," said Christos Anagnostopoulos, a commodities analyst at Aurora Energy Research. The Dragon LNG terminal will undergo maintenance from today until Wednesday, which will limit LNG send-out. An unplanned outage at Norway's Slepner transport...
